

CommonPeople · 1 DAY AGO
This seems like a criminal offence. Where are the AG or DPP in all of this?
Davy involvement and compliance 'mishaps' seems like a side show.
REPLY

FromNY · 1 DAY AGO
CONTENT DEACTIVATED WRTP It looks like Davys takes its cues from the former practices of failed brokerage firms like Bear Sterns based upon my reference to John Paulson in my Final Report (p.26) on my U.S. Falte 32 website. But in Paulson's case, he didn't do anything unethical, unlike Davys. My reference stated in part, "I believe some banks even accommodated his contrarian strategy, which effectively was selling the deals to investors without telling them that someone was shorting on the other side."
I've been trying to hold the Irish Government accountable for many years now, specifically the National Pensions Reserve Fund (NPRF/NTMA) and Enterprise Ireland, for the alleged mismanagement of at least $50M from the NPRF via a funding program called Innovation Fund Ireland (IFI), led by a former Irish Government Minister. Nobody in Ireland will hold them accountable, including lawyers, oversight bodies etc. My Reports detail my efforts over these past few years, which you can access on my US website Falte 32. Let's rid the Irish Government of 'mismanagement' first and then possibly we'll be able to resolve other issues. When it comes to the management of the hard earned 'dollars' of Irish taxpayers, a zero tolerance gold standard for any unethical or indeed criminal behavior should be enforced at all times. The Irish Government should always act as fiduciary, in the very best interests of its clients (Irish taxpayer), no excuses as my da used to say. It's so hypocritical of the NTMA and John Corrigan in my opinion to be acting so righteous on this issue. Perhaps we should investigate their involvement to see if there's anything to unearth?

ColumMcCaffery · 1 DAY AGO

IT FINANCIAL SERVICES

SUGGESTED FOR YOU
State has no plans to set up new banks - Minister
READ NOW
Praspati, Hemant