What will happen all these young people when PUP is withdrawn?
I do not think we as a nation should be one bit proud of how this pandemic was managed and the burden that younger generations will face as a result of these decisions, but those in power who made them won't be around to deal with the fallout . Only the young , the poor and vulnerable.

Unemployment among the youth is a shame. I, as many others did, experienced similar unemployment over the past decades but without Covid, so I sympathize for our youth today. Unfortunately, the government yet again never learned from the last recession (or the other one's) and many of our youth will likely have to emigrate. The Tanaiste like those before him again talks the talk, almost exactly the same words. I've tried to develop indigenous industry in Ireland by bringing investor groups from the US to Ireland and have also set up Opportunity Ireland to focus on FDIPs, but have been taken advantage of by the Irish Government and Ignored respectively. But I'll keep plugging away. The point is, I read another article in the IT today about Sudo Cream moving to Bulgaria (for the life of me I can't understand why there is no comments facility on article). The same old story of MNCs at a whim moving operations abroad after all Ireland did for them. My Reports on Faite 32 refer in part to this activity. I remember visiting the Sudo Cream plant back in the early 90's and meeting its owner at the time (and I cold called), and it made you proud to learn about an indigenous Irish manufacturing facility. The owner was a gentleman showing me around the plant and operation. But this is the other problem that Opportunity Ireland tries to solve where indigenous innovative Irish companies are bought out by MNCs like Teva, thus risking our indigenous base of also being uprooted and moved abroad, a sort of double whammy...
